ROBERT SCOTT, KIRKPATRICK, WINS CONTEST

Third Annual County High School Extemporaneous Competition Held

SPEAKS ON CRIME

Merton Porter, Green Camp, and Daris Moyer, Prospect, Are Second and Third

Robert Scott, representing Kirkpatrick, won the third annual Marion county high school extemporaneous speaking contest at the Prospect school auditorium last night with his speech on "How Shall We Reduce Crime?".

Second place was taken by Merton Porter of Green Camp, who discussed "The Kellogg Treaty" while third place went to Daris Moyer of Pleasant who talked on "Immigration and Crime."

In reporting his selections for the three honors Dr. Delbert G. Lean of Wooster college, who judged the contest, stated that it was almost possible to place six of the 12 contestants in the first group. The fact that a boy or girl present on the platform was a distinction in itself, he said, for it meant that he or she was the best in his or her school.

Cup Given School

A silver loving cup was awarded to the winning school while gold, silver and bronze medals were received by first, second and third honor speakers, respectively. Kirkpatrick, the winning school, will act as host to the speakers in next year's contest.

Other speakers on the program, the schools they represented and their subjects follow:

Charles Milligan, Caledonia, "Responsibility for Crime;" Miss Frances Kraner, Claridon, "The Problem of Unemployment." Miss Ferne Wise, Agosta, "Causes of Crime;" Miss Dorothy Whitman, LaRue, "Crime and Society;" Miss Elizabeth Berry, Prospect, "Need for Immigration in the United States;" Miss Helen Ashworth, Morral, "Causes of Crime;" Avery Davis, Waldo, "Responsibility for Crime;" Miss Glenora McBride, Martel, "Poverty and Crime;" and Miss Mildred Little, Meeker, "Crime and Society."

Speeches were given in groups of three. Music was played in the intervals, being furnished by the Prospect school orchestra under the direction of Miss Josephine Almendinger, Mrs. R. Secrest and Mrs. Walt W. Kyle, both of Prospect, who sang a duet, and Miss Ruth Lauer, of Prospect, who played a piano solo.

QUEEN REPLIES

Cablegram Brings Appreciation of Coolidge's Message to King

LONDON, Dec. 14—Queen Mary sent the following cablegram to President Coolidge today in response to a cablegram from the President to King George hoping for his speedy recovery.

"The queen is most grateful to you, Mr. President, for your kind message of which his majesty will, in due course, be informed as soon as his strength permits. Though the recent operation successfully treated one phase of the serious illness, the consequences of general infection will entail many weeks of slow, anxious progress before convalescence can be reached."

ILLNESS OF KING REACHES WAITING STAGE

Every Known Method Exhausted by Medical Science in Fight for Life

London, Dec. 14—King George's serious illness this afternoon had reached the stage of anxious waiting.

Every method known to advanced medical science has been exhausted in the battle for the monarch's life.

It is officially admitted that the royal patient's progress must be slow and difficult.

The whole nation, and especially the royal family, anxiously await the developments of the next 36 hours.

The king is suffering exhaustion, but the failure of the morning medical bulletin to mention any increase in heart weakness gave fresh hope.

Fight to Prevent Spread

The physicians are now fighting to prevent a spread of the infection that affected the right lung.

Many members of the royal family gathered at Buckingham palace this afternoon, but the object of the meeting was not known.

It was officially stated at the palace at 3 o'clock that the king's condition was unchanged.

Later it was learned that the members of the royal family had assembled for a quiet birthday luncheon given by the queen for the duke of York. This was his thirty-third birthday.

Those present included Princess Mary, her husband, Viscount Lascelles; the duke and duchess of York and the Prince of Wales.

Transfusions Might Help
Flying and Influenza
Bonus for Singed Lambs?
What Did Red Moran Think?

BY ARTHUR BRISBANE

GREAT BRITAIN was cheered by hope that the King might recover. It was faint hope, for doctors, after operating, reported indications of continued blood infection.

In cases of blood stream infection, American surgeons resort to blood transfusion, with remarkable success.

The King, exhausted by long illness, the fighting strength of his blood low, might find resisting power in new blood from a strong man.

Transfusion of half a pint two or three days apart have worked wonders in cases of toxemia. Once used only as a last resort, transfusion is now in constant use here.

THE country is indebted to President Coolidge for deep interest shown in aviation and recommendations for airplane expenditures in his messages, and his part in the celebration of the Wright Brothers' flying anniversary.

Yesterday famous fliers, with government officials of 40 nations, discussed in Washington national problems that will arise as air transportation across continents, and oceans develop.

National co-operation is necessary that the air may be free to all, as the ocean is free.

IN another Washington building experts discuss the possibility of checking influenza, alarming in various places, although fortunately not as bad as in 1920. Deaths in seventy-five cities total 189 for the week ending December 8.

Kansas leads in the number of cases reported, 13,506, but it is believed that only one-fifth of all cases are reported.

What causes influenza nobody knows. It is suggested by serious men that "interstellar dust clouds" may be responsible. Hitherto influenza waves have swept from east to west. This time, the disease is traveling from west to east.

Not content with its own destruction, influenza, weakening the system, prepares it for encephalitis lethargica," a new sleeping sickness almost as common as infantile paralysis.

Government that pays attention to diseases of pigs and plants might well attack human influenza.

WORKERS in Wall Street will receive [illegible] bonuses this year, running from 30 per cent to 100 per cent of their annual wages, and totaling [illegible] millions. The men have worked hard and [illegible] will be welcome.

Something in the way of a bonus [illegible] would also be welcomed by little lambs that recently have had their wool singed. Seven hundred and fifty of them, whose accounts are said to have been closed out in one brokerage house, would appreciate a bonus. "Money" dropped to 6 per cent yesterday. That is a sort of bonus.

WHAT do you suppose "Red" Moran thought about last night, listening to music in his death cell while other Sing Sing prisoners were enjoying "the annual convict frolic?"

Sixty convicts presented the play "No, No, Nanette," with music by a jazz band.

Not to spoil the evening, prison authorities kindly decided to postpone "Red's" trip to the electric chair until 3 o'clock this morning.

To sit in a "pre-execution" cell while others laughed and music played, then strut and fret along the hall through the little door across the floor to the death chair, seems a strange ending.

If we heard of savages that kept a prisoner listening to music for a few hours before killing him, we should moralize about it, as we do about the savages that fatten their missionary.

WITHOUT a word of debate, the Senate yesterday increased by $250,000,000 the treasury department's appropriation for enforcing prohibition. Prohibition has more of a grip on the Senate than on the public.

Some believe it would be better for the government to legalize beer and light wines, making $500,000,000 profit on sales, rather than spend $250,000,000 to put the country on a bootleg whisky basis.

But speculation is useless. Prohibition is here to stay, at least as long as this generation stays.

Governor Green Would Remove Prohibition From Habitual Crime List

Lansing, Mich., Dec. 14—Gov. Fred W. Green today ordered Arthur D. Wood, parole commissioner, to investigate the case of Etta Miller, [illegible]-year-old mother and grandmother, convicted as a fourth offender against the prohibition law, as soon as Judge Charles B. Collingwood imposes the sentence to life imprisonment required under the criminal code.

PERHAPS no group of individuals was more active in the county in the recent political campaign than the women pictured above. They constitute the membership of the glee club of the Marion county chapter of the Ohio council of Republican women. After the club was organized no Republican gathering was complete without their presence.

Negotiations are now under way for including the glee club in the program at the inauguration of Gov.-elect Myers Y. Cooper. The club sang at a meeting here at which Cooper was the chief speaker.

In a recent letter to R. E. Prettyman, chairman of the Republican county executive committee, Mr. Cooper wrote of the glee club members. He said, "I want you to tell them how much I appreciate them collectively and individually. I shall pass along your suggestion and insistence as my own that they appear at the inauguration."

Members of the club are:

Middle row: Mrs. R. M. Sager, Mrs. H. R. Krebs, Mrs. John Osborne, Mrs. H. K. Henderson, Mrs. J. A. Burgin, Mrs. E. H. Moore.

Columbus Man Will Become Adjutant General of Ohio

Columbus, Dec. 14 — Gov.-elect Myers Y. Cooper today announced his selection of Col. A. W. Reynolds, 58, Columbus, for adjutant general of Ohio, succeeding Adjt. Gen. Frank Henderson of Marysville.

The appointment is to become effective on Jan. 14, next, when Cooper is inaugurated governor. The position pays $6,000 a year. Reynolds is a Republican. Henderson, a Democrat, has held the position of adjutant general during the past six years, or throughout the three terms of Gov. Vic Donahey's occupancy of the gubernatorial chair.

Grangers Would Put National Master in Hoover Cabinet

Mt. Vernon, Dec. 14—That L. J. Taber, Columbus, retiring master of the Ohio State Grange and now master of the national grange, should be made secretary of agriculture in President-elect Hoover's cabinet was recommended in a resolution adopted by the organization at the closing session of its annual state convention here yesterday, it was announced today.

Another resolution adopted called for legislation which would make airplane owners carry liability insurance, in order that farmers whose fields are sometimes used in emergency landings could be reimbursed for damage done. This damage is usually a torn-up field of grain or dead cattle.

The grangers also favored the enactment of legislation which would make compulsory liability insurance for automobile drivers who have been convicted of driving while intoxicated or recklessly [illegible]

Television Near, Claim of Radio Manufacturer; Strides Are Being Made

Garside of De Forest Company Urges Public To Watch Developments of Next 90 Days; Movie Negotiations Are Now Under Way

New York, Dec. 14—Television is on the eve of being introduced to the American public in a practical way. This statement was made today to International News Service by James W. Garside, president of the De Forest Radio Co. and president of the newly-formed Jenkins Television Corp.

"Great strides will be made in the use of television within the next 90 days," Mr. Garside predicted.

This assertion is at variance with the attitude of at least one or two other big corporations which have been experimenting with television. They have given the impression that television, as far as the general public is concerned, is many years away.

But Mr. Garside and his associates, including C. Francis Jenkins, inventor, who designed and constructed the first motion picture projector, think that the time is ripe for television to make its commercial debut. They believe it will be only a relatively short time before people all over the country will be viewing "radio movies" in their homes.

Getting to Tape

The Jenkins Television Corp. is getting to the starting tape in what may develop into an exciting commercial race for putting television inventions and devices into the home. This corporation was formed recently to manufacture television receivers and transmitters which will broadcast motion pictures direct into the home.

Negotiations are under way between the corporation and executives of a large motion picture chain, Mr. Garside admitted, for rights to broadcast movies by radio television to screens of motion picture theaters.

The radio industry is reported to be feverishly working on television. It is said that television experiments are being worked out in the research laboratories and engineering departments of virtually all leading radio set manufacturers.

"Television is hailed in some quarters as "the next step in radio development"—that, in fact, television

AUTO LICENSE TAGS MOVING SLOW HERE

Slight Increase Over Last Week Reported at Club

Sales of 1929 automobile license plates at the offices of the Marion Auto club continued slowly this week although a slight increase in the number issued was reported for the last two days.

Since the opening of license sales on Saturday, Dec. 1, 582 tags have been issued to non-club members. So far this week 371 have been issued while 211 were given out the first week.

Truck owners continued to come in for their 1929 plates at approximately the same speed as last week. Approximately 50 truck licenses have been issued so far this week while 56 were issued last week.

Club members have shown more interest in getting their license tags early and avoiding the last minute rush which is certain to result. Approximately 150 club members have taken out licenses so far this week.

Twelve passenger-commercial licenses have been issued and five trailer tags.

SUICIDE ENDS MYSTERY OF FEARN MURDER

Young Lorain Woman Confesses Crime to Husband; Tragedy of Infidelity

TAKES LIFE IN AUTO

Was Being Taken to Sheriff To Give Up; Leaves Young Baby

Canton, Dec. 14—The mysterious murder of Vernard Fearn was a closed case today—the murderess, Mrs. Margaret Heldman, 21, of Lorain, having written "finis" to an ironic, bitter tragedy of infidelity and hatred when she shot herself through the heart last night, using the same pistol with which, just a week before, she had killed Fearn.

Her husband, W. O. Heldman, to whom she had confessed earlier in the evening, was bringing her to the sheriff's office here in his automobile. They had driven from Lorain.

Mrs. Heldman, the "gun girl," the "phantom murderess," who called Vernard Fearn to the door of his home in the village of Waco, pumped six bullets from an automatic pistol into his body and calmly walked away, was not perturbed or nervous during that last, grim automobile trip, her husband related.

Threatened Her, Claim

A short time before she had told him of the killing, Fearn had once assaulted her, she said, and had threatened to reveal this incident to her husband unless she submitted to him.

"He made my life a hell on earth," she said, in a farewell note.

Her husband had berated her, he admitted remorsefully today. She wanted to wait until today before going to Sheriff Ed Gibson to surrender herself. He insisted that they start at once and brought out his automobile.

As they started she asked him to care for their four-months-old son.

"He'll have better care than he's had before," Heldman replied.

A little whimsically, she speculated as to what would become of her.

Drive Into Canton

Bitterly, brutally, he replied:

"You'll probably get the electric chair. I think you deserve it."

They drove on in silence and reached Canton. For a moment they were held up by traffic at a street corner.

"It won't be long now," the young husband observed morosely.

There was a sharp report and Mrs. Heldman slumped forward. Dazed, Heldman drove on to the courthouse and summoned the sheriff.

Mrs. Heldman was rushed to a hospital where she died.

And thus was cleared up the identity

POPULAR WELCOME IS GIVEN TO HOOVER

President-Elect Begins Round of Banquets, Receptions in Buenos Ayres

Buenos Ayres, Argentina, Dec. 14—Impressed by the cordiality of the popular welcome accorded him upon his arrival here, President-elect Hoover today began the first of two busy days of official banquets, receptions and speeches after a good night's rest at the American embassy.

There was no perturbation among members of Mr. Hoover's "good-will" party over reports that a plot aimed at the president-elect's life had been frustrated only two days before his arrival. Nevertheless, Mr. Hoover's temporary residence, the American embassy, is constantly under heavy guard.

The last 30 miles of the Hoover party's journey resembled a campaigning tour of a candidate for presidential election in the United States. Throngs of cheering people gathered at every crossing. A holiday atmosphere pervaded. "Viva" filled the air.

CONFERENCE'S PEACE EFFORT GIVEN SETBACK

Bolivian Minister Refuses To Attend Session When Dispute Is Discussed

Washington, Dec. 14—Efforts of the Pan-American conference to arbitrate the widening rift between Bolivia and Paraguay received another setback today when Dr. Diez De Medina, Bolivian minister, and delegate for his government to the conference, announced he would attend no plenary sessions at which the boundary dispute was under discussion.

Last minute instructions from La Paz reached De Medina this morning, advising him to stand pat on the Bolivian demand for "moral reparations" before any arbitration is attempted. The minister further received word of the appointment of Tomas Manuel Elio as Bolivian minister of foreign affairs, and as Elio is of the opposition party, De Medina pointed out the unity of thought in his country.

Newspaper editorials from the leading Brazilian publications, also sent De Medina, indicated Brazil is backing Bolivia in the dispute.

At a session of the special mediation committee, headed by V. M. Maurtua, Peruvian minister, a definite peace offer was agreed upon to submit to Bolivia and Paraguay as a means of adjusting their troubles. Heretofore, the committee had been divided over three proposed plans of procedure.

PROWLER IS SLAIN BY CHICAGO WIDOW

Fires Single Shot at Shadow in Front of Her Window

Chicago, Dec. 14 — A prowler, thought to have been a "peeping Tom," was shot and instantly killed today by Mrs. Frank McCormick, 34-year-old widow.

Mrs. McCormick told police she was awakened by the sound of someone walking on the fire escape outside her second floor bed room window. Living alone, she keeps a revolver for protection. As she reached for the gun she saw what appeared to be a shadow of a man stooping as though to peer into her window.

She fired one shot and the shadow disappeared.

Mrs. McCormick summoned police who found the prowler's body on the fire escape. He was shot through the forehead.

The man's pockets yielded a card bearing the name Carl Murray, two dollars, a pair of dice and a pint bottle of whisky. The dead man appeared to be about 28 years old.

Mrs. McCormick was not held.

LAYS DOWN RULE

Realtors Must Display Licenses, State Board Announces

Columbus, Dec. 14—The reported failure of some real estate brokers over the state to comply with the real estate license law in regard to the displaying of their licenses in their offices and a sign on the exterior setting forth the fact that the occupant is a real estate broker has prompted the Board of Real Estate Examiners to rule that no real estate broker's license will be renewed for 1929 until each broker swears to a statement in a supplemental questionnaire that he is observing the law in those respects.

J. W. Jacoby, of Marion, president of the state board of realty examiners, said that this step was being taken because of evidence furnished by the Ohio Association of Real Estate Boards and the state department's investigators which shows that there are a large number of dealers, especially in some communities, who are not displaying their signs and licenses.

Jacoby explained to officers of the Ohio Association of Real Estate Boards that the state department would continue its surveillance of real estate offices during 1929 and intimated that it would not be pleasant for brokers failing to display their licenses and signs after they had furnished written statement to the board of real estate examiners that they were observing this requirement of the law.

This, it may be said in passing, is one of the states in which an effort was made during the campaign to arouse agricultural discontent. The answer may be had in the Iowa election returns.

To Complete National Shrine.

The design accepted by Secretary of War Davis for the completion of the tomb of the "Unknown Soldier" in Arlington cemetery—the joint work of Thomas Hudson Jones, sculptor, and Lorimer Rich, architect, both of New York—is alike simple and dignified.

Reproductions of the design show it to be a sarcophagus, twelve feet long, six feet wide and ten feet high, which is to be superimposed upon the existing base. The sculptured relief in front shows a figure of Victory, with supporting figures on either side, one representing Peace, and the other Man-Power of the Nation. Doric pilasters strengthen the corners and sides, and there is a wreath in each of the three panels in which the sides are divided, while the inscription is to go on the back.

The scheme for the completion of the surroundings calls for a monumental flight of granite steps approximately 120 feet wide extending down from the front of the tomb to a level twenty feet below the base. A broad, tree-lined avenue extends several hundred feet eastward toward the Potomac, terminating in a balustraded platform overlooking the city of Washington.

The choice was made in a final competition in which five models had been selected, and was recommended unanimously by a special jury of award, the Arlington National Cemetery commission, the American Battle Monuments commission and the Fine Arts commission after a competition in which seventy-three sculptors and architects participated.

Congress had directed that the plans be made on a basis of $50,000 for the work.

Experts have expressed high praise for the effectiveness of the work of Messrs. Jones and Rich and paid tribute to its high artistic merit, but what in the completed monument will appeal most to the lay visitor to Arlington, judging by the reproductions which have appeared in print, is the manner in which it fits in with its solemn surroundings, making a shrine in all ways worthy of the nation which thus makes visible record of its esteem for its honored dead.

London After Ocean Travel.

Unwilling longer to occupy a place in ocean transportation subordinate in importance to those held by Liverpool, Southampton and Plymouth, London is preparing to attract the business of the biggest of ocean liners making British ports such as the Leviathan, Majestic, Berengaria and the other giant liners in the North Atlantic service.

Already a number of fine Atlantic liners steam up the Thames to London, and the biggest oriental liners go almost to its outskirts, tying up at Tilbury, twenty-two miles down the river from the British metropolis.

It is at Tilbury that the big liners from India and the Orient dock. The village docking facilities heretofore have left much to be desired, vessels frequently being prevented from docking by the low tide, at which times it is necessary for passengers to wait for high tide or be taken off in tenders.

To obviate such annoyances an immense landing stage eighty feet wide and almost 1,160 in length is being constructed there, which will permit vessels of any size to dock regardless of the tide. On the river bank in close proximity to this landing stage a great concrete "shore" has been constructed, five bridges connecting the two. A new railroad station has been erected on this river bank of man's contrivance in which trains will be backed up ready to receive the passengers from the liners and hasten them over the short trip to the heart of London.

The distance of Liverpool to London by rail is 200 miles, from Plymouth to London is 140 miles and Southampton is eighty miles away from the metropolis. At first thought, one might assume that Plymouth, which is but 3,493 land miles from New York, and Southampton but 3,598, might have a big time advantage over London which is 3,847 land miles distant from New York City, but there are factors which wipe out this advantage in either case. Passengers are taken off liners at Plymouth by tenders and the approach to Southampton is through the Solent, which is so shallow that vessels barely crawl along. Frequently such ships as the Leviathan, Majestic and Berengaria touch bottom and at times they stick fast in the mud. On the other hand, vessels bound for London can maintain good speed through the English channel and the Strait of Dover and negotiate the bay into which the Thames flows at such a speed as to compensate for the greater distance traveled, handicapped as Plymouth and Southampton are by the tender service in the case of the former and the slow water approach in the case of the latter and the railroad distance from London of both.

In fact, it would not be at all surprising should the traveler from this country to Great Britain be able, in the course of a year or two, to travel direct from New York to the outskirts of London in the largest vessels afloat, which would be a most decided convenience.

Tribute to Our State Department.

No matter what may be the outcome of her reentrance into the Pan-American conference on arbitration and conciliation, the fact that Bolivia, after having quitted the gathering, has ordered her representative to resume discussion of her differences with Paraguay is quite a tribute to the diplomacy of Secretary of State Kellogg.

While it is true that the League of Nations addressed a communication to Bolivia reminding her that she was a member of the League and obligated by her membership to submit her differences with her fellow-member, Paraguay, to the League's prepared agencies looking to peace, it is rather generally agreed that it was the Kellogg communication transmitted through the United States' minister at La Paz, David Kaufman, which was the deciding influence, which led the Bolivian government to reconsider its action.

Secretary Kellogg, in his note to La Paz, informed the Bolivian government that the United States government very much regretted the withdrawal of the Bolivian representative from the conference and expressed the hope that Bolivia would reconsider the matter. It was in response to this Kellogg note that Diaz de Medina, the Bolivian minister to Washington, was cabled by his government to resume his seat at the conference table and cooperate with the other delegates to the conference in the endeavor to iron out the difficulties presented by the Bolivian-Paraguayan boundary controversy.

As we have said, Secretary Kellogg has scored a decided point even should the conference prove unable to avert war. If, however, war is averted as the outcome of the resumption by Bolivia of its place in the conference, such a result will redound greatly to the credit of our state department and prove another illustration of the growth of the influence of this country in world affairs.

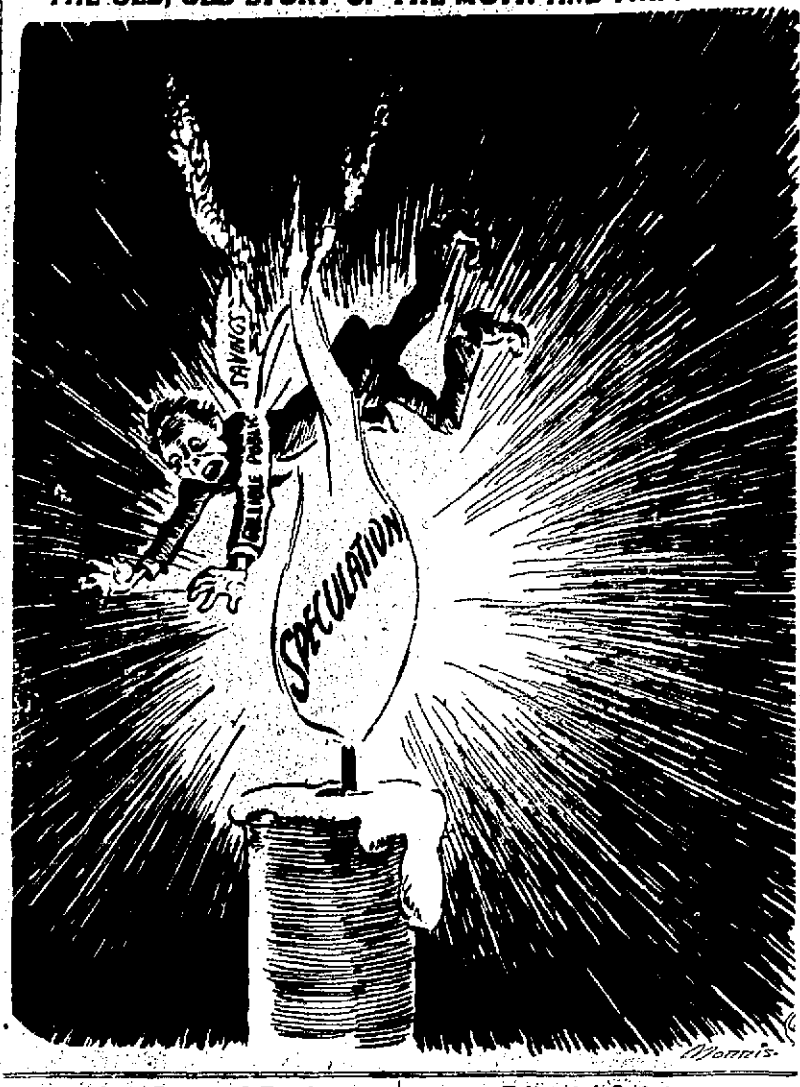
THE OLD, OLD STORY OF THE MOTH AND THE FLAME.



Catarrh a Cause of Deafness.

BY ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.

One of the most hopeless of all ailments is steadily progressing deafness. The way to cure deafness is to avoid having it. When once it begins the chances are the trouble will go on and on, growing worse year by year.

The most common cause of deafness is catarrh, a condition which begins in the nose and its cavities. There is an inflammation of the mucous membrane. This extends up the passageway to the middle ear, both lined with mucous membrane.

We are learning a good deal about the evil effects of bad teeth and gums, diseased tonsils and bad digestion. There can be no doubt that pus absorption from any source will lower the resistance of all parts of the body.

Fermenting substances in the intestinal tract produce poisons which affect the whole system. Uncleanliness within the body is worse than uncleanliness of the outside.

Nature made the skin on purpose to protect the body. It is almost as impervious to the absorption of poisons as is the leather of our shoes. Indeed, the leather is nothing more than prepared and preserved animal skin.

But the body and its various tissues can not resist the poisons generated within its various organs and other parts. The strongest of men will suffer the evil effects of such agents.

I have no doubt the various catarrhal troubles from which men and women suffer are influenced by such poisons as I have mentioned. We can not hope to be well in all our parts unless every part is normal.

Of course, there are other causes for deafness than catarrh. Some persons have a tendency to over-secretion on the part of the wax glands of the ear canal.

It is surprising what masses of wax can be crowded into that small cavity. Time and time again I have removed a quantity full equal to two-thirds the substance of a cigaret.

Very much less than this will impair the hearing and even destroy it for a time. Let the doctor look into your ears and see what is there.

I have spoken of middle ear trouble and of external ear deafness. There is a third form of deafness—internal ear deafness.

The nerve of hearing is called the "auditory nerve." It ends in delicate fibers which float in a fluid found in the cavities of the bone, prepared for this use.

Anything that causes unusual drain upon the nerve energy may reduce the hearing power. Ill health, chronic indigestion, the wrong diet, habitual loss of rest and sleep, the neglect of sunshine and exercise—anything, indeed, that lowers the vitality may have its effect upon the nerve of hearing.

If you have buzzing or singing in the ears or, for that matter, any variety of "head noises," have the ears examined. If you have obstinate nasal catarrh, dropping into the throat, coughing in the morning or other similar symptoms, it is time to have the advice of the doctor.

Early attention to these symptoms which precede deafness is vitally important to you. Your hearing is too necessary a part of your life to be neglected in the least.

Editorial Opinion.

THE LOAN TO GREECE.

It is gratifying that the house has at last approved the Greek loan. Ten months ago President Coolidge sent a special message to the senate recommending legislation to give effect to the proposed settlement with Greece in the very terms which this bill embodies; and Secretary Mellon made a plea before the ways and means committee, at about the same time, for the authorization of this loan by the government. The amount of this additional loan is $12,167,000, which is less by 17,000,000 than the amount of the credits promised as a part of a wartime agreement. The debt funding commission reported in 1926 that the United States was relieved from legal obligation to make advances beyond the amount, $15,000,000, given before the recall of Constantine to the throne in 1920, though England had kept in the full amount her agreement.

Whatever moral claim Greece may have—or even legal claim, according to the view of some—she has waived it in agreeing to accept this lesser amount with the refunding of the old debt over a period of sixty-two years, as in the case of the debts of other European nations to the United States. The new loan of $12,167,000 is, however, to be repaid with interest at four per cent, in twenty years. And this portion of what was promised in time of war, and with a view to expenditure for war purposes, is now by express terms to be applied to the relief and reestablishment of the refugees from Anatolia, to whom Greece gave shelter to the number of nearly a million and a half. The original wartime contract was kept by Greece, and she has morally done since the war far more than she contracted to do in trying to give succor to these 1,400,000 homeless, helpless exiles, some of whom were not even of the Greek race.

The League of Nations, through a committee which has had by specific provision an American chairman from the beginning, procured loans for this greatest of rehabilitating enterprises ever undertaken in the history of nations. They were, however, not adequate to complete this gigantic task, which was made the greater by the devastation of the earthquake in Corinth. In this emergency Greece herself advanced $5,000,000 more out of her own treasury in the hope of future assistance from America. It is to be hoped that the long-delayed loan will now be consummated through prompt action by the senate and that we who, as Daniel Webster said in the senate of his day, "like the rest of mankind, are greatly her debtors," shall find this substantial way of meeting, in some measure at least, our imponderable debt to Greece and of sharing in this colossal international work of good-will and world order.—New York Times.

Twenty Years Ago.

It was Monday.

Dr. G. T. Harding received word that his daughter, Mrs. Heber Votaw, had arrived in New York on the White Star liner, Celtic, en-route home from India.

Ignatz Bender was fined $200 by Mayor Schorff on the charge of conducting a place where liquor was sold. The case was carried to the common pleas court.

Jacob Prettyman was elected counsellor of the Home Guards.

The Advance club donated furniture for a rest or emergency room at the Greenwood Street building.

Mrs. V. E. Dombaugh entertained the members of the Woman's club at her home on east Center street.

A marriage license was issued to Florence May Bauer and Adam Eversole.

All the stores were remaining open evenings, having agreed to do so till after Christmas.

The mayor of Bucyrus was administering fines of double the ordinary size to all residents of dry towns arrested up there for drunkenness.

A daughter was born to Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Eddy, of north State street.

Dinner Stories.

Little Ada was calling on her mother's friend, and noticing a picture of angels in long robes, she asked: "Does every one in heaven wear white clothes?"

"Oh, yes, dear," her hostess answered.

"Well," said Ada, "I hope God has got a better laundrywoman than my mamma has."

Mrs. A—"When I left the club your wife was talking."

Mr. B—"No wonder she says it's so home-like."

"A parachute looks like an umbrella."

"It's very different," said the aviator. "No sensible airman permits himself to be embarrassed in an emergency by the discovery that he has lent his parachute to a friend."

"Before I take the case," said the lawyer, "there is one thing to be looked into."

"I presume," said the client, "you refer to my pocketbook."

New York Day by Day.

BY O. O. M'INTYRE.

New York, Dec. 14—Thoughts while strolling: Fannie Hurst's coiffure is showing her ears this season. Wonder how a fellow comes to take up playing a French horn? That building where the elevator operators say "Ascending" and "Descending." Whoops, my dear!

Alexander Woollcott, a Phalanx, New Jersey, boy, who made good in the city. Al Jolson greeting the former Mrs. Jolson pleasantly—divorced, but friendly. H. N. Swanson, editor of College Humor and just out of college. Those pint sized black cabs with venerable white haired coachmen—very Park avenue.

A hotel famous for its banana ice-cream. Ben Ames Williams in town from Boston. Enthusiasm for talkies not cooling. South gentleman "types" with wide hats, string ties and goatees who sell corn salve on street corners. Toy penguins from Paris—called "Alfred."

Those modernistic beds are a death blow to the old maid looking under the bed for a man jokes. Hot house grapes—three dollars a bunch. Who remembers when New York was noted for its cleanliness? "The Dog and Cat Beauty Hospital" on west Forty-Ninth street. Violet Heming is easy on the optics.—Pee-Wee Byers.

A roaming tin-type photographer. I suppose there are really people who care for mushrooms. Wish red-haired ladies would quit wearing so much green. Joe Humphries, the prize fight announcer. Lingering color in the foliage. Auto horns you expect to be followed by the cry: "Any fish today, lady?"

There used to be girls who would never think of visiting bachelor apartments alone. A chili parlor run by a full-blooded Indian. George Arliss without a monocle. The new Fifth avenue building devoted to "facial aesthetics." People who go to expensive luncheons just to be seen.

Women who bundle up and sit on park benches to read novels. Flora Zabelle grows prettier with the years. Those flossy new drug stores with soft green lights. Earl Benham, the movie actor, who became a fashionable tailor. Cellar bookshops—open until midnight. Al Smith, a city boy, who did not make good in the country.

The luncheon hour in smart cafes in Manhattan has become a daily fashion show—a splurge of debutantes in orchids. And inconspicuous nobodies pay the extra — vagant tariff to look on. There are women, the sillies, who do without servants and other comforts to be a part of the mid-day show.

At the Colony, Ritz, Margeury, etc., the luncheon pageant arrives at 1 o'clock and most of them must be off to the matinees at 2. But it is during this hour fashionable New York squanders a quarter of a million for fancy food.

I have often wanted to be sitting in at one of those glorified luncheons dabbling with a set of grey caviare with some one else paying the check, of course, and have certain people from Gallipolis, Ohio, pass the table. Perhaps that would end the whispering campaign about my cosmopolitanism. There are people there who intimate I wear white spats, but I still saucer my coffee. It has always been my luck when home folk see me eating in public to be up on a stool gnawing at a pig's knuckle.

Shrewd and thrifty theatrical first nighters do not pay a five dollar or $10 premium on their seat for a premiere. They merely loiter about the box office and wait for returned tickets. There are always at least a half dozen who find at the last moment they can not attend. This is true also of "sell out" shows.

What many of us graying theater goers miss at curtain time is that brisk rap of the special policeman's club in the gallery and his cry, "Hats off!"

There is a type of he-operagoer who wears a white satin Inverness cape and seems to do nothing, but preen himself in front of mirrors or parade the aisles. He may be the last dressy gasp, but I wouldn't trade six of him for one pretty gold-braided Paramount usher.

Birth of a Continent.

BY GARRETT P. SERVISS.

Look at a map of the world and observe the singular region between Asia and Australia occupied by the shallow seas that wash the East Indian islands, including in that general term everything from the Philippines to the shores of Australia, and from Sumatra to New Guinea. If your map is one of that instructive kind which indicates sea depth as well as land elevation you will perceive that if water no deeper than 100 fathoms—600 feet—is represented as if it were land, the result will be that a vast continental extension, rivaling Africa in extent, will be seen stretching southeastward, covering all the area now occupied by hundreds of islands, and joining Australia to Asia.

The first thought that springs into the mind on seeing this is that there must have been a time when the immense Euro-Asiatic continent really had this eastward extension to the south as if for a balance to Africa on the west. Perhaps it was so; perhaps an East Indian Atlantic does lie sunken between Australia and Malaysia, but the peculiar character of the native forms of life has been thought to negative this supposition.

But if there is not an ancient continent lying there just under the sea surface, then, perhaps, there is a future continent like a chick ready to break its shell trying already to rise out of the watery covering and showing the point of its bill in the form of coral decorated islands and sometimes of volcanic cones.

Such, at any rate, appears to be the thought in the back of the minds of certain Dutch scientists who are about to begin an extensive exploration of the sea and the sea bottom in this region, which is very largely under Dutch control. Holland has made some land on the shore of the North sea with an industry that has been the admiration of the world and if it can now discover a new continent about—thinking in terms of geological time—to emerge from the ocean and join its colonies, the applause will match the wonder.

It is certain that uncommon geological activity and disturbance occur in the East Indies. Java and Sumatra and the sea around them are extraordinary on account of the number of volcanic events found there, as well as for the tremendous power exhibited by many of the volcanoes. The bottom of the broken sea containing the grouped islands between Borneo, Celebes and New Guinea is very irregular and contains deep depressions surrounded by elevations which resemble the "folds" that gave rise to such mountains as the Alps.

The folding of the crust under sea in this region is attributed to a horizontal compression taking place between Asia on the north and Australia on the south. The response to this is a gradual rising of the sea bottom in folds and ridges, which are the beginnings of mountains. If this would only go on fast enough to show its progress plainly year after year, or decade after decade, a complete history of mountain birth observed by human instruments might eventually be written. But even the partial and imperfect observations that can actually be made may, with the aid of the scientific imagination ranging into future milleniums, give us a clear picture of the situation when the great Oriental land mass forming Asia and Europe shall appear on the maps of the far future like a two-legged monster striding over the equator. — Copyright, 1928, International Feature Service, Inc.

The Way of the World.

BY GROVE PATTERSON.

Homer, Greek poet, speaks of "the glory of a firm, capacious mind." Very unfortunate for many of us who have little minds. But some large minds are not much better. They are capacious, but not firm. A kind of inconsistency which enables a man to change his opinion in the light of new truth is greatly to be desired. But the kind of changeableness which isn't based on new information or on thought denotes a mind that may be broad but shallow. It is capacious but not firm.

On the subject of the mind one might well recall the words of the philosopher Berkeley:

"All the choir of heaven and furniture of earth—in a word, all those bodies which compose the mighty frame of the world—have not any substance without a mind."

The election is now a few weeks past and there has been time to think about some things in connection with it. The most encouraging aspect was not the selection of any particular candidate, although candidates are important. The significant thing was the enormously increased interest of the American people in the affairs of their republic. The size of the vote justifies a new belief in the possibilities of democratic government. It is to be hoped the renewed spirit will continue to burn.

Putting off until tomorrow ranks as a bad habit, but one should not condemn the custom as a whole. It all depends upon what you put off. One of the happiest and most successful men the writer ever knew used to say: "Don't do anything today that you can put off until tomorrow—but be sure you know what you can afford to put off."

Trying to get everything done today or this week or this month is not worth the wear and tear. If you go home with work unfinished, if you have to start on a trip with work left undone, don't let it worry you. Take it up when you get back, at the place where you left off. Do the important things, the few significant, vital things. Take the others in order. Man was never made to proceed and return like a sky rocket.

n anyone says Charles Ray it iately brings to mind a "bash- refoot boy," a Tom Sawyer or berry Finn or one of the coun- s from James Whitcomb Riley's r poems. And this is one of pes of characters Charles Ray senting to Marion audiences. ever, his second appearance change of costume is more the s Ray one would meet upon re- or a personal interview.

He's Got "It"

Clara Bow, Charles Ray has landsome to begin with he has the kind of a face one sits patiently waiting to see change expression. His smile is an art and his face in repose, a study. When he smiles and laughs, one catches a fleeting glimpse of the wholesome rural lad Charles Ray made famous. Not smiling he looks and acts the Hollywood gentleman—successful artist—man of the world.

CHARLES RAY

Says He Didn't Care for Movies—Shall We Believe Him?

The only disappointment in a conversation with Charles Ray comes when he emphatically tells one that he "doesn't care for pictures" and "hadn't really enjoyed" playing the country boy roles which made him known throughout the states.

"I really like better playing something with more comedy and drama; perhaps more sentimental, a picture of the type of Al Jolson's "The Singing Fool," he said. However, he had liked best of any pictures he had made his role in "The Girl I Loved" when he co-starred with Patsy Ruth Miller.

Hollywood, Not So Bad

Surprising too, is the fact that Charles Ray, when 17 years old, began work in pictures with the ultimate aim of a stage career. After completing his present tour he will "do" a musical comedy before reverting to the screen for a "talkie movie."

Asked what he thought of Hollywood and its opportunities for the would-be movie star, Charles said, "Hollywood isn't nearly so bad as it's painted—people build a sort of fantastical idea about it while, in reality, it's not different from other American cities. As for the young man or woman hoping to 'break' into movies I advise them to be well financed before tackling Hollywood studios. Work doesn't come soon or often for the beginner."

Next to his work this screen favorite is interested in music and cherishes a secret ambition to sing in comic opera, operetta or musical comedy. Marionites who visit the Palace theater this week will be attracted as much by his fine tenor voice as by his appearance and performance. Fond of sports his favorite games are tennis, and, when it does not necessitate early rising, golf.

"Mornings are for sleep not golf," the sage star declared.

Back in California Days

A close-up of Charles Ray shows him very much as pictures do—carefree looking, rather collegiate, well-dressed, boyish but with the poise of a man of middle age. He is six feet and one-half inch in height, weighs 178 pounds (ideal football build) and has brown eyes and very dark brown hair with fair skin.

Charlie Ray's career began in Needles, Cal., where he moved with his parents from Springfield, Ill. There he attended grade schools, business college and spent 18 months in the Wallace Dramatic school. Expecting to beard Belasco in his den he went to New York only to discover that finances prevented such a pass. He turned his attention to filmland and finally signed with Thomas H. Ince under whom "The Coward," one of his first feature full-length pictures, was produced. This was a distinct hit and was the forerunner of other such roles which eventually evolved into rural and bashful characters.

Now Free-Lancing

Then for several years came a succession of such pictures as "His Home Town," "Mother's Boy," "The Hired Man," "Nine O'clock Town," "String Beans," "The Girl Dodger," "Greased Lightning," "The Busher Hayfoot," "Straw Foot," and "Bill Henry." He then incorporated his own company and produced 17 pictures including what proved to be a film waterloo, "The Courtship of Miles Standish." Next he was with Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, then with Cecil B. DeMille and now free-lancing, appearing at present opposite Corinne Griffith in "The Garden of Eden."

laced the sealed envelope with r things in the box, locked it y, and left.

Daphne, who had not slept, reached the office earlier than usual, but early as she was, Mr. Sanderson and Mr. McMurtrie were there before her, holding a conference in Mr. Greely's private office. They closed the communicating door when she came in.

"Have you heard from Mr. Greely? Is he better this morning?" she asked Mrs. Hobbs, the telephone operator.

Mrs. Hobbs, who was usually a bubbling spring of information, overflowing and running over, readjusted her headpiece and considered. "I believe they did have him on the wire, honey, and he was all right. You were still here when he was taken sick, weren't you?"

"Yes, and Mr. Winters from McKevitt's office was here too. We took him home."

"You did, honey? Well. How did he look: real bad?" It was obviously Mrs. Hobbs' morning for receiving, not giving information.

Miss Yardley was even less communicative. "I don't know a thing about it, I'm sure," she said, "except that he is pretty well this morning. And if I were you I wouldn't bother Mr. McMurtrie or Mr. Sanderson. I am sure they have their hands full with other things."

Towards noon Ralph McKevitt, hat pulled over his eyes, overcoat collar upturned, strode through the outer office and was closeted for hours with McMurtrie and Sanderson. There was a restlessness in the office, a shifting of feet, a curious air of expectancy. Everybody seemed to know what was happening. Everybody but Daphne.

"Ralph!" she called timidly when he came out of the private office at last. She even held out her hand, as if to stop him, but if he saw or heard her he gave no sign. He walked right by, his handsome face flushed and drawn, eyes straight ahead. She did not have the courage to follow, or call him again. She felt guilty . . . the memory of that excited, half-mad dancing . . . of Allan Winters' kiss . . . "I must have been crazy!" she thought for the hundredth time.

The long afternoon wore on. She tried to concentrate on her work, struggled to keep her mind on the contract she was copying. Painstakingly, clumsily, her fingers found the meaningless words, but she wasn't really there at the desk at all. She was back in Mr. Greely's office, supporting his heavy head against her shoulder . . . waiting . . . waiting for the doctor to come.

She was in the high, bleak hall in his house watching them lead him upstairs, seeing those three pairs of feet disappear around the bend of the stairway, the taxi driver's yellowish ones, the meek black ones that belonged to the butler, old Mr. Greely's congress boots in the center, so heavy, stumbling on every step, weighed down with his age and weakness. . . . And then she was back in the roadhouse, laughing and eating and dancing. . . . Dancing . . . while Mr. Greely lay, perhaps at death's door. . . . And they were on the narrow porch at Mrs. Hinckle's where so many times Ralph, whom she loved and would always love, no matter if he never spoke to her again, had lightly, gently, kissed her goodnight. . . .

"When he knew we love each other, and he's supposed to be Ralph's friend, how could he?" she asked herself, over and over again.

Around and around her thoughts went, in meaningless circles, stopping and starting, beginning again, around and around like a merry go round.

It was the office boy who told her, just as she was going home. He was a serious young man, with large, stick-out ears, and dark rimmed glasses, and an eager, nervous way of speaking.

"Oh Miss Haines, I have a note a lady left for you. I hope it wasn't important. I was so busy today in all the excitement I forgot to give it to you."

"What was the excitement?" she asked idly.

"Why didn't you hear?" He leaned toward her, and said in his loud, clear voice, with the little nervous rushes, "Ralph Iverson McKevitt almost went under today, that's all. The market dropped and when he went to cover his margin he found that collateral he thought he had, had been sold, and $20,000 drawn out of the bank without his knowledge. He'd have been sunk all right if it hadn't been for Mr. Greely coming through. McMurtrie and Sanderson wouldn't. Lucky for him that the old man didn't die, I say."

With his spectacled eyes on her, she couldn't quite realize the enormity of what he was saying. She fingered the note in her hands.

"He—he's safe? He's all right?"

The boy laughed. "Sure, didn't I tell you? But they're going to have an awful time keeping it quiet. You better not let on I told you, but of course you'd find it out, here in the office. If you ask me, Winters'll go to jail."

"Winters? You don't mean Allan Winters . . . that Allan Winters stole . . . took . . ."

"He sure did. Mr. Sanderson says it amounts to about $40,000 all told. Maybe they'll give him the chance to pay it back—"

"Forty thousand? Oh nobody could possibly—"

"No, I guess not. I'd send him to jail if it was me, but Mr. McKevitt is an awful good-natured slob. They had to about give him the third degree before he'd admit Mr. Winter took it. He looks awful. Say, aren't you going to read your note?"

She tore it open. It might be from Ralph. . . .

"Dear Daphne," she read. "Your father wants me to tell you he does not want to see or hear from you, and will you do him the favor of never setting foot in the house. I feel sorry to have to tell you this, but with his health what it is, I would not risk him getting another temper over it, so please take my earnest advice and stay away. If he changes his mind I will be pleased to let you know. I myself wish you only the best. If at any time you could afford to send a little something home it would be appreciated, because I am not equal to all the work now, and you know how he is, he don't want me to get help.

"Many the time I sat up sewing clothes for you, and since you are doing so well in your position, like you said in your letter, I would be glad for anything. Crystal is not able to help yet, poor girl.

"After she and Ralph McKerritt get married I won't have to ask you. He had just proposed to her the day I was in town, so it won't be long now. Be careful who your friends are, I want to advise you like I would my own girl. Don't trust the men, you can't do it, dearie, the best of them is untrustworthy. I only hope he makes her a good husband.

Your loving friend and stepmother,

Adelina Garroty Haines."

A Story of Boyhood Adventure

BY JUDD M. LEWIS

The Receipt Arouses Suspicion

CHARLES OWEN'S manner was so plausible, and his excuse for wishing me to leave the library was so pat that I found it difficult to frame a courteous refusal to his request. But my instinct told me that he was doing exactly the thing I had expected him to do—attempting to separate me from Lillian in order that his half-brother might have the opportunity to talk to her with no third person present. I made my refusal adamant, therefore, though couching it in apparently nonchalant terms.

"I'm afraid this is one time when I cannot jump through the hoop for those girls of yours," I told him, smiling. "Mrs. Underwood is feeling quite ill this morning, and she has asked me not to leave her to herself for even a minute. Just tell Mary to exercise her memory and and take the decision I must have rendered many times before. As I already told you, they have appealed to me so many times, upon every possible question, that I am sure they can remember a ruling for this particular occasion. If they cannot, they will have to depend upon some other umpire, I cannot possibly leave this room for anything."

I raised my eyes and looked steadily into his as I spoke the last words. His glance met mine as squarely, and for a long second we stood motionless as if measuring each other's strength and determination. Then he bowed low.

"As you choose, of course," he said, and, turning, went down the hall. As I came back into the room, closing the door after me, Samuel Brixton gave a chuckle, amused or malevolent—I could not for the life of me determine which.

"Not very flattering to me, Lil," he said as I came back to the couch where she was sitting. "Don't you know I'm warranted not to bite, I'm a mangy old lion, teeth gone and fangs drawn."

He laughed raucously, and Lillian looked up at him with an inscrutable smile.

"I am not afraid of you, Sam," she said quietly, then dropped her eyes again to the paper he had given her.

Something in her tone or smile brought back the brick-red flush to his face, but he said nothing, only watched her narrowly as she read over the "receipt" he had handed to her with the check.

Lillian is notorious among her friends for her ignorance of financial matters. She can earn a great deal of money, and she spends it with wisdom and discrimination, though lavishly. But she is distressingly at sea about simple business forms, and I was not surprised to have her thrust the "receipt" into my hands.

"Read that, Madge," she said, "and tell me what it means. It seems something more than just a receipt."

Mr. Brixton put out his hand nervously as if to take the paper, but I ignored the movement and read the thing carefully, while he kept up a staccato accompaniment of "Nothing but the usual form, means nothing more than the customary receipt for the money."

When I had finished reading, I raised my eyes and looked steadily at him for an instant, then turned to Lillian.

"This may be the 'customary receipt' which Mr. Brixton uses," I said ... "but it is different to any form I have ever seen. As it stands, it is a formal release for yourself and Marion of all claims, past, present or future against Mr. Brixton arising out of the transactions between him and Marion's father."

The Heart Story of a Woman's Lasting Affections

BY ADELE GARRISON

FRIDAY.—One week from next Tuesday will be Christmas, and one week from today school will let out till next year. It would be fine if a fella could go fishing or swimming or something, but all we can do will be to go slaying and skating. We went down to the hill to do some slaying this morning, the first time since we had poured the water on it to freeze, and some dirty crook had spread ashes all over it, and they had kinda sunk in and were froze there and would spoil our slide all winter. We chaseted the Lost Bag of Tripe all the way home, and then we got the shovel out of our barn and tried to scrape the ashes out of the slide but we couldn't do much good so we took the shovel back, and by that time it was too late to get our skates and go skating so we stayed at my house long enough to get warm from working on the hill. Annabelle Lee who was setting on the floor eating some oatmeal and milk heard us come in the kitchen and she got up and put her soup plate of mush and milk in my grandfather's chair which he wasn't in because he had got up to open the stove door and light a piece of paper and light his pipe, and then she came out to see who was in the kitchen. My grandfather backed up and sot down again and then he got right up and put his hand behind himself and got it full of mush, and then he looked in his chair and said this was the damndest house he had ever been in. My ant told him that people who go through life backwards are better looking that way, some of them, but they ought to expect to get mussed up, but she said she was sorry for him, and my grandfather's whiskers stuck out in front like he was from Arkansaw he was so mad. He glared at my ant and she smole at him, and finely he said to her to save her sympathy for the man, if any, that she married. She said, "Well, I'll never marry a man like you!" And he said, "You're darn right you won't. The men like me have got sense!" and then Annabelle Lee began to beller for her oatmeal and we all slam out for school.

I would like to be my mother and stay home all day and watch my ant and grandfather scrapping; but a fella can't be his own mother. He can't be anybody's mother. Natude is very wonderful.

After school we went and looked in a store window and saw some candy canes up above the front-line. I told Youulse my stumnick was lame and needed a candy cane, and she said I was the funniest fella she ever saw, an asted Feeble if she didn't think so, and Feeble said I look the tunniest. She thinks she is smart.

Marion County Township Officials To Fight Legislation

TRUSTEES, CLERKS FORM ORGANIZATION

Will Battle Move To Do Away with Township Offices

CODDING IS PRESIDENT

Head of State Group Speaks at Meeting in Court House

Continued development of a movement to abolish the township unit of local government led to a meeting of trustees of practically every township in Marion county here yesterday afternoon.

With prospects that the move to abolish the township government may eventually reach the state legislature boards of township trustees and clerks in many parts of the state are uniting to prevent any possible legislation that would do away with their offices. At the meeting yesterday, which was held in the court house, a county organization of township trustees and clerks was formed.

The officers elected were H M Codding Bowling Green township president; E T Virden Montgomery township vice president; Fred K Dix, Prospect township secretary treasurer. James Fields of Claridon township Fred Baldinger of Tully township and Russell Sycks of Waldo township were named on a committee to draft a constitution for the organization. Walter Williams of Claridon township was named representative to the state organization.

The principal speaker at the meeting yesterday was Joseph Thomas of Ashland county, president of the state organization of township trustees and clerks. Thomas urged trustees of Marion county townships to organize and support the state organization. He also told of the move to abolish the township unit of government.

According to Thomas practically half the counties in the state have organizations of their trustees and clerks. The annual meeting of the state organization will be held in Columbus Jan [illegible] and 25.

That township trustees of Marion county were the first to pass a resolution asking the state legislature for state aid under the Green law in building township roads was revealed in a talk made at the meeting yesterday by Dr W B Guitteau, former service director of Toledo and now executive secretary of the Ohio Crushed Stone association. According to Guitteau trustees in a number of counties will ask the legislature at its present session for aid in building township roads.

Township trustees of Marion county passed a resolution last [illegible] asking the legislature for aid. The resolution was passed at a meeting called by County Surveyor Cecil H [illegible].

Kettles on Streets Net Neat Sum for Annual Yuletide Baskets

Approximately $100 has been netted in contributions to the annual Salvation Army Christmas fund since the kettles were placed on the street last Saturday, it was announced today by Captain Percy Holden of the corps. Miniature kettles and drums also will be placed in the stores and business places down town to receive contributions until Christmas and merchants also are being solicited for donations to the Christmas baskets.

The unusually fine weather during the week enabling shoppers to be out, aided materially in the campaign Captain Holden stated. A number of calls have been received for baskets already and these are being listed at headquarters. Requests may be phoned, mailed or left in person, and it is planned by army heads to cooperate with other charitable organizations in bringing Christmas cheer to the needy this year. A check will be made to avoid duplications it is stated.

MYSTERY OF MURDER SOLVED BY SUICIDE

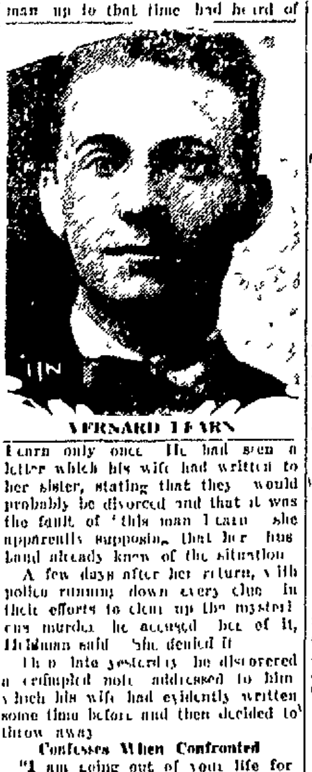
tity of the phantom murderess and her motive for killing Vernard Fearn.

Formerly a Canton girl, Mrs Heldman came here Monday Dec 3, to visit her sister, Mrs Roy Pierce. On Thursday night Fearn a young coal dealer was called to the door of his home at Waco near here, and shot to death, almost before the eyes of his wife and nine year old daughter.

Thought He Knew

The murderess returned to Canton on a bus. Returning to her home at Lorain she prepared her husband's breakfast the next morning. Heldman up to that time had heard of Fearn only once. He had seen a letter which his wife had written to her sister, stating that they would probably be divorced and that it was the fault of "this man Fearn." She apparently supposing that her husband already knew of the situation.



VERNARD FEARN

A few days after her return, with police running down every clue in their efforts to clear up the mysterious murder he accused her of it, Heldman said. She denied it.

Then late yesterday he discovered a crumpled note addressed to him which his wife had evidently written some time before and then decided to throw away.

Confesses When Confronted

"I am going out of your life for ever and I am truly sorry for all the trouble I have caused you. Rather than try to go through the rest of my life under a lie, I am taking this means of telling you the truth," the letter reads in part.

"He (Fearn) came to our house when we were living at ——'s (the family with whom the Heldmans lived in Canton) and threatened to expose me if I didn't do what he wanted me to.

"Please don't tell my mother—forgive me and give the baby a good home."

Heldman confronted her with the letter and she confessed.

"Get your hat and coat. We're going to the sheriff" he replied.

Ironically, if Mrs Heldman had not surrendered herself last night she would most certainly have been arrested today. Sheriff Gibson, investigating Fearn's private life, had learned of his acquaintance with Mrs Heldman and planned to go to Lorain today to take her into custody.

Married in 1927

The time of Fearn's alleged attack on his subsequent slayer is not known. Before she died she said that he at one time offered to take her home in his coal truck but instead drove her to an isolated spot and assaulted her.

The Heldmans were married in Canton in September of 1927. They quarreled frequently and the 27 year old husband admitted today that he never fully understood his dark eyed silent young wife. A short time ago they moved to Lorain where Heldman was a salesman for a furniture concern.

To Continue Investigation

The Heldmans four and a half months old baby Roy Emmet is in the custody of Mrs E L George of Canton. When the Heldmans left Canton they went to Jackson, Mich, then to Lansing and finally to Lorain Ohio where they settled in a rooming house about six weeks ago.

The baby was left here in the custody of Mrs George, Heldman sending money for its care. Heldman returned to Lorain today. He said he would pay his wife's funeral expenses and her body has been taken to the Arnold & Sons undertaking establishment.

Sheriff Gibson said today he expected to continue his investigation of the case.

SEE WALES READY TO TAKE THRONE

Prince Prepared To Follow Traditions and Undertake State Duties

London Dec 14—The often reported but entirely unconfirmed determination of the Prince of Wales to decline accession to the British throne has been brought forcibly to the forefront today by his dramatic dash home to the bedside of his stricken father.

However the manner in which he has assumed the position of first authority in the royal household since his arrival from Africa indicates that he is prepared to follow the traditions of the reigning house and undertake any state duties which may devolve upon him.

From his youth—the prince will be 35 his next birthday—the heir apparent has been noted for his democratic principles. The whispered rumors that he might decline the throne were based for the most part upon the visible inability to harmonize the position of sovereignty with his well known democratic tendencies. Another reason was the prince's failure to marry.

For years there have been back stairs whispers that the prince intended to waive his right to succession.

These whispers were intensified after the king became ill nearly four weeks ago. It has been reported the prince might delegate his power and position to his next brother the duke of York. The duke is married and has a baby daughter.

That the prince has always found the dignity of his position somewhat onerous is well known. His dislike of being held in awe and reverence always grated against his democratic tenets.

FLU ATTACKS CITY IN ITS MILD FORM

Several Hundred May Be Suffering from Disease Which Is Sweeping Ohio

ers men and women, are carried on the "sick roll."

Akron was next reported in the grip of influenza. Approximately 4000 school children are flu victims. This number added to the total of those reported ill in the rubber plants various business concerns and the police department brings the estimated flu sufferers to 15 000.

From these two highly infected points the influenza has spread completely across the state and is now taking a southern course large numbers of cases being reported as far south as Union county today.

Youngstown Hit

Dr Robbins received word today from Youngstown that between one and two per cent of the entire population was ill with the flu which at a low estimate would be 1 500 and [illegible]000 cases. Bucyrus today is in the grip of a serious epidemic of hard colds and several cases of influenza.

In the schools 10 per cent of the students are reported ill with flu in its mildest form. The report circulated this morning that the school of Bucyrus had been closed was denied by L N Dietrich superintendent of schools. The principal question in Bucyrus appears to be that of procuring enough doctors to give personal attention to those ill.

Defiance is reported to have 500 cases of influenza. Union county of which Marysville is the principal city is known to have 200 reported cases of influenza. In none of these districts has the situation become alarming as yet but warnings have been issued by city and county health officials.

Several schools have been closed however because of the influenza. The largest city closing its educational institutions was Newcomerstown.

Spreads Swiftly

Lima Mansfield and Canton are reported fairly free from the disease although a few cases have been cited. It is believed by Dr Robbins that in the majority of these cities there are more influenza sufferers than reported as doctors are failing to report to their county health department all sufferers they attend. Dr Robbins points out that this was the case in Toledo and Akron and that the disease had gained great headway before the state department was notified and thus delayed the issuance of special warnings to health commissioners throughout the state.

Dr Robbins appealed to all doctors and health authorities to notify his department at Columbus of even the slightest trace of an outbreak of the disease in their territories.

Columbus has not as yet been attacked. There are a few cases there as there are in Dayton and Cincinnati but reports today do not indicate the influenza area that far south.

Washington Dec 14—A new legislative lobby—of such proportions as to be unparalleled in past history—became an established functioning machine here today, dedicated to the task of making America literally as well as figuratively dry.

ve Pies A Day and He Lived To Be 87! Man's Appetite is Revealed

OOSTER, Dec. 14—Five pies per diem, 35 round, lesome gastronomic triumphs ek . . . elieve it or not, the late Gerhart, local horse fancier umed that quantity of pas- daily over a period of 35 s—and he lived to be only 87. Perhaps if he had eaten 50 pies a week . . . But, no—Mrs. Gerhart and the children could not have produced that many.

Gerhart's flair for that particularly American housewife dainty, the cherry pie, came to light recently with the filing of his will in probate court here when Wesley H. Zaugg, who wrote the will, mentioned it to Probate Judge Charles C. Jones.

Members of Gerhart's family readily confirmed the story. It had been an everyday occurrence in the Gerhart home, they said, for "Father" to eat his five pies daily—and he had done it for so long that the performance dropped from the realms of the extraordinary to the commonplace.

One pie for breakfast, two for dinner and two more for supper. Not the little "sample" pies procured at the corner bakery, but the big generous ones that one is tendered at any hospitable farmhouse.

Not that he confined his efforts solely to pies. He was too much the perfect epicure for that. He ate a few eggs, some meat occasionally and a few other things but the pie remained the piece de resistance.

Mrs. Gerhart baked her five pies every morning, the neighbors say. Sometimes, she made an extra one—for the rest of the family. But when the number was the usual five, none but father got any pie.

Although cherry pie was his favorite, he never refused a pumpkin pie, a berry pie, or any other kind.

Gerhart conditioned and shipped horses, sleek, well-fed beasts, for many years—most of them going to Ringling, Barnum and other circus men before the days when the motor truck took away much of the glamour and glitter of the circus parade.

New York led all cities in volume of air express packages, Chicago was second, Los Angeles third, and San Francisco fourth. The total number of air express packages handled at the airport here was 2,400.

During the month shipments ranged from prunes to a single parcel of $500,000 worth of securities, from door locks to lingerie, from a spare part for an electric generator to fur coats, from radio sets to men's hats.

This book is put forward by the editors as a health series on physiology and hygiene.

"Cheap candies very commonly contain harmful coloring matter and other adulterants. Sweetened tallow and grease form the filling of certain chocolate creams. Until a few years ago many manufacturers used shellac for coating chocolates, then the Government forbade its use. The honest manufacturer stopped using it, but the dishonest ones kept on. At a recent New York Pure Food Show, one of the exhibits consisted of three bottles. In bottle No. 1 there were what seemed to be candy peanuts. In bottle No. 2 there were the same kind of peanuts after the coating had been taken off, and in bottle No. 3 there was the coating that had been washed off—four ounces of furniture shellac or floor polish. Many classes of candies get their polish just as woodwork does—by a coat of varnish. There was also at the food show a jar of candies that had been colored brown with sweetened house paint. One of the exhibits was a doll in gaudy clothes which had been colored with coal tar dyes obtained from candy and ice cream. How would you enjoy eating your chocolates if you knew that you were swallowing flour or house paint?"

-o- The New Book -o-

BY FRANCES JENNINGS

CONTAINING in an even greater degree the elements of sympathy and understanding which characterized "Doomsday," "Kitty" and "Sorrell and Son," Warwick Deeping's newest novel, "Old Pybus," holds an enviable position among best sellers of the year.

This new book of Mr. Deeping's is the portrait of an old man—written something after the fashion of Hugh Walpole's characterizations. The story revolves around Old Pybus" and his grandson, who are united in the bonds of understanding and love, in spite of Pybus' age-old quarrel with the boy's father and uncle.

If nothing else, "Old Pybus" shows Mr. Deeping to be one author who understands youth as thoroughly as age and who is able to present both with ease and perception. The rather pathetic little story of an unusual and strong love ends with the death of "Ol' Pybus," whom his grandson rightly calls "The Venerable," a determined and courageous little man who could be "tranquil, bravely smiling," even in death.

DICKENS BIOGRAPHY VIVIDLY WRITTEN

RALPH STRAUS' "Charles Dickens," a biography from new sources, is a vividly written and sanely treated account of one of the most fascinating and most beloved characters in history. Mr. Straus does not attempt to put Dickens on a pedestal; nor does he paint him as a selfish hypocrite. He has a profound admiration for the Inimitable Boz, but it in no way blinds him to the novelist's faults.

Charles Dickens, at the age of 27, was the most popular author in England, and today is one of the most popular authors in history. The characters he created and the things they said, have become familiar to everyone. And the novelist himself lived a life far more exciting than any of his characters.

Beginning his career like the immortal David Copperfield, by pasting labels on bottles at the age of 11, Dickens led a life of feverish activity. He gained an education, with the help of friends, served as a reporter in Parliament and finally graduated into writing.

This new biography gives the details of Dickens' separation from his wife, Catherine, after 23 years of married life. There is also an account of his first romance—with Maria Beadnell—and his sad disillusionment upon meeting her when she was fat, 40 and coy.

On the whole Mr. Straus presents an unbiased picture of Dickens, shrewd and penetrating, with an open eye and an open mind.

HERE'S ANOTHER CHRISTMAS LIST

THE following is the second of a series of three lists of books suggested as appropriate for Christmas gift buying:

Fiction: "The Father," Katherine Holland Brown's story of a young woman's love affair and her father's devotion to a great cause; "Guyfford of Weare," a glorious tale of adventure with a charming love idyll, told by Jeffery Farnol; and "Harness," in which the author of "Scandlings," A. Hamilton Gibbs, tells the adventures in marriage of an English ex-officer and an actress.

Non-fiction: "Whither Mankind," a panorama of modern civilization edited by Charles A. Beard; "How Labrador Looks at the Orient," Sir Wilfred Grenfell's notes of travel during a journey into the Near and the Far East; and for children and grown-ups, too, John Drinkwater's book of poems, "All About Me."

Brooklyn Police Slayer Unable To Conceal Nervousness

Ossining, N. Y. Dec. 14—Thomas (Red) Moran, 20 and "hard boiled," was executed in the electric chair at Sing Sing prison early today for the murder of two Brooklyn policeman in 1926. The current was turned on at 1:05:30 o'clock and Moran was pronounced dead at 1:08.

The youthful Brooklyn gangster, who shouted "I want to burn" when sentenced in court, tried to appear nonchalant at the end but could not conceal his nervousness. A cigaret was taken away from him and his request for whisky was refused. An hour earlier he had enjoyed a game of pinochle with a keeper.

Moran made no statement. He had said farewell to his brother, Charles, and a former sweetheart who visited the prison with a baby in her arms.

The execution was postponed two hours while the other convicts were being entertained at the annual Sing Sing show, a musical comedy.

Disabled Vessel Riding at Anchor in Uncharted Alaskan Waters

Cordova, Alaska, Dec. 14—Passengers of the disabled Alaskan packet, Starr, were today safe on board the relief schooner Olive and enroute to Kodiak, Alaska, where they can be transferred to regular coastwide vessels.

Captain Barron, master of the Starr, expressed a desire that families of the 12 passengers and all members of the crew be advised that all were safe.

The passengers were taken off the Starr in small boats and set aboard the Olive at sundown Thursday.

The Starr is rudderless and her propeller is damaged. She is at present riding at anchor in uncharted waters near Dark Island, but today expected the power boat Almeda which will tow her to deeper waters and thence to Seward if the weather is favorable.

Hawaiian soil is entirely volcanic lava.

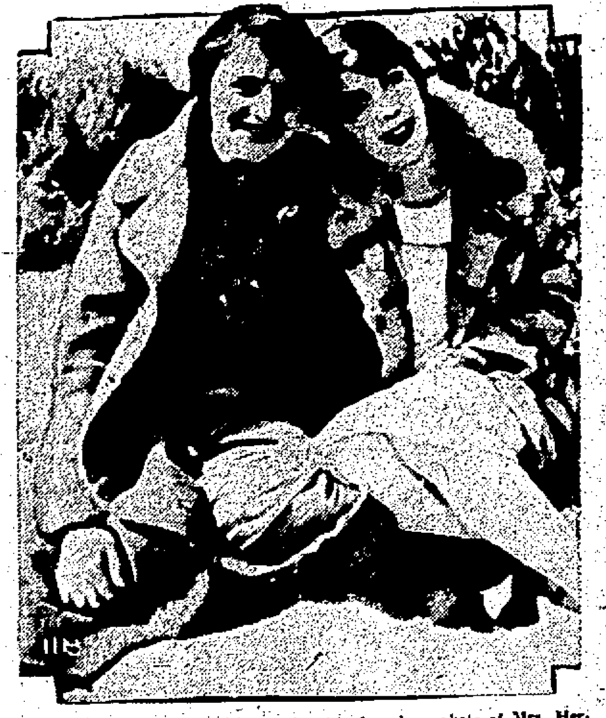
THEY FIGURE IN BIGAMY CASE



"In happier days" might be the title for above photo of Mrs. Herbert Leigh-Manuell (left), wife No. 1 of Sayville, L. I., church organist, and pretty Martha Van Wyen, wife No. 2 of the same temperamental musician. The first Mrs. Leigh-Manuell appeared as witness at the marriage of her husband to Miss Van Wyen. The organist awaits trial on a charge of bigamy.

Hear the new
SONORA Radio
NEW in principle, NEW in performance

NO matter how fine a radio you may own — no matter how perfect its tone may seem — you have still to hear a finer one.

That radio is the new Sonora Radio.

That's a flat statement — and the only answer to it is to hear the new Sonora. This we invite you to do — today, if you can arrange it.

Hear the new Sonora. Compare any of three distinctive Sonora models with the best you have heard for tone, volume, cabinet work, price. No matter how biased or how critical you may be, you will agree that here at last is radio reception at its finest.

NEW SONORA RADIOS

Sonora Radios, of full electric operation, are a distinct and certain advance in radio perfection. From their throats pours glorious music. Sonora musical instruments are priced from $95. Easy time payment plan available.

Ritzy Rosalie

© 1928, by King Features Syndicate, Inc. Great Britain rights reserved. 12-14

At first appearance it is uncertain whether Rosalie is merely shopping or is faring forth on an overnight journey. The large envelope bag is designed for use as an overnight case, and its spacious interior permits the carrying of all the usual necessaries; and when carried while shopping provides a convenient container for small packages. Penelope is carrying a new form of muff bag, in the design of a dog, worked out in widely contrasting colors. These are quite collegiate, and are seen in numbers on the campus, the colors of course being those of the particular school.

MANY CITIES VOTING BONDS FOR AIRPORTS

Chicago — Competition between municipal airports is already developing, according to the American Air Transport association. There are now 80 approved airports, 160 intermediate fields, 900 auxiliary fields, and about 4,000 miscellaneous fields of emergency value.

At the November election, a substantial number of cities voted bond issues to acquire or develop approved fields and at the present time several million dollars have been appropriated or authorized by cities for air terminals

"You Just Know She Wears Them"

In key with Modernism

BENEATH today's simplicity much complexity is hidden. Just so in a McCallum Stocking. Here, lustrous beauty seems a simple thing. But seek its cause and you find a supreme achievement in the knitting craft. By means of fibres "parallel-laid and parallel-knit" every silken filament, every ridge in a McCallum Stocking, becomes a tiny mirror for reflecting light. Can you wonder, then, at the radiance, the indescribable sheen of McCallum Hosiery? ... Correct colors and styles dictated by the moment make up our McCallum assortments. And the price range is wide enough to fit into every budget.

SIX CASES LISTED FOR NEXT WEEK

Judge H. E. Hoge Will Preside at Marysville Next Week

THREE JURY TRIALS

Judge Porter To Hear Contest Over $10,000 Hospital Gift

Marysville, Dec. 14—Chief Justice Marshall of the Supreme Court of Ohio has assigned Judge Hamilton E. Hoge, of the Hardin County Common Pleas court, to hear six cases in the Union county court next week. Union County Judge Porter will take Judge Hoge's bench that week, hearing four cases, of which three are jury trials.

Cases to be heard by Judge Porter are: Monday, Dec. 17, the case of the McKitrick Hospital against C. M. Cesano and J. W. Lydick, administrators of the estate of F. M. Teeters, for the sum of $10,000 due on a promissory note issued to the hospital Feb. 6, 1923, as a subscription gift. It is understood that the defendants will take the stand that the note was never issued by Teeters, and that if it were, it was done without consideration. Wednesday, Dec. 19, another promissionary note trial will be held to determine whether a note was purchased before maturity or not in the suit of Lizzie Young against Pamela Young, executrix. Another trial in which Pamela Young is the defendant will be held the following day, Thursday Dec. 20. This suit was filed by B. S. Young, through Fish to recover the value of jewelry claimed to have been used by the said Pamela Young, when it was not her property. Judge Porter will preside over a court hearing in the matter of the estate of B. S. Young, deceased, on Friday.

Union County Suits

In the Union county court, Judge Hoge will hear the contested divorce suit, Clyde Fish against Robert Fish, on Monday. Another contested suit, that of Lena Melick against Ovid Melick, will be heard by the court the following day. Wednesday, Dec. 19, Judge Hoge will occupy the bench in the jury trial of The Firestone Foundry and Manufacturing Co. against the Federal Brass and Manufacturing Co. The State of Ohio against Pearl Burnhart, for forgery will be Thursday, Dec. 20, and on Friday there will be the cases of Hauge against Milo D. Myres and Haugen against Richard O. Thrall for attorney's fees.

HEN GOES IN FOR FAMILY SIZE EGG

KENTON, Dec. 14—A three-in-one egg was discovered during the past week in a shipment from the Frank Runser farm, west of here.

Refused by the buyers, the large egg was returned to the Runser home and when it was broken for the morning it was found to contain three perfect eggs—more than enough for breakfast for Mr. and Mrs. Runser.

The well known Hardin county farmer has a fine flock of 700 white leghorn hens, all of the May hatch. He has been getting a good yield of eggs for several weeks.

BRUCE CAUSES STIR WITH APPROPRIATION

Gets Approval for $270,627,-384 Amendment for Enforcement Work

Washington, Dec. 24—The senate's "one-man" appropriation of $270,627,384 for prohibition enforcement will bring a showdown," it was apparent today, on the question of dry law enforcement.

With the wets contending for the last several years that actual enforcement of the Volstead act would require hundreds of millions of dollars, Senator William Cabell Bruce, Democrat of Maryland, by a coup, had the $270,627,384 appropriation incorporated in the treasury appropriation bill. He secured approval of his amendment while confusion reigned in the senate and scarcely a senator present realized at the time what he had accomplished.

The fight today was transferred to the conference between the senate and house where all differences between their respective bills are adjusted. In all probability, the senate's appropriation will be slashed down to the $13,500,000 level approved by the house a week ago and which a majority of the senate thought had been approved by the upper branch. Whatever happens, there is likely to be considerable debate in both branches when the conference report comes back for final enactment.

The $270,627,384 appropriation naturally must fall by the wayside or President Coolidge undoubtedly would veto the bill. This sum would represent an increase of $257,127,384 over the recommendation of the budget bureau.

CHICAGO BUSINESS IS GROWING, FIGURES SHOW

Chicago—The steady trend of Chicago business is graphically reflected in the new high record in car loadings during the first ten months of the year according to the Chicago Association of Commerce. Up to the end of October, the number of cars leaving Chicago freight platforms, totaled 2,325,239 or approximately 93,000 more than were loaded in the Chicago district in 1926, the previous high year.

October was the greatest month in the city's freight history with 265,728 cars loaded, August running a good second with 244,517. Prior to 1928, the best freight loading period in the city's history was March 1927, when 239,372 cars were cleared from local tracks.

It's all right to bubble over with enthusiasm, provided there is something back of the bubbles.

A true friend is one who will listen to your hard luck story without coming back with one of his own.

LEADS CRIMSON ELEVEN

Perhaps it is only appropriate that a chap nicknamed 'Red should lead the 1929 Crimson eleven So everybody concerned should be pleased with the election of James I (Red) Barrett, 185 pound tackle as captain of Harvard s 1929 eleven He is a consistent all around performer

All-American Grid Eleven Gives Webster Hard Job

Wrampemeyer, Cornell	R E
Pennshenschuss O State	R T
Poppeleriter De Paul	R G
Nohillilitti Columbia	C
Ubbrlyl Ohio State	L G
Lubrutovitch Wisconsin	L T
Moscovitz Rutgers	R H
Sjostrom Upsala	Q B
Guarnocela Harvard	R H
Hgnatelli Iowa	L H
Ogelum Pennsylvania	F B

The foregoing is the champion supersuperial All American unpronounceable eleven of 1928

As the football season closed all the experts would be experts and such gathered their befogged brains together and compiled all eastern all western all Big Ten and all this and thats So, not to be outdone we think the all unpronounceable eleven should have its due

There are some, perhaps who will rave and gnash their teeth because their favorites are not included To be sure it was a hard task and much sleep was lost in compiling this super list when one thinks of such candidates as Diadarrio of Rensselaer College, Gonzanauti of Villa Nova Hrudak of Georgetown, Hospudder of the New York Aggies

Smith is getting to be fairly good too and one might include Smith of Iowa in the team We know of a Greek grocery store owner over on Halsted street named John Papadlo dureontodorngrotopolous — but unfortunately he never played football or he might be made captain of the list We understand every time he signs his name to a telegram the companies charge him for five extra words

All of the men presented in the all unpronounceable team are sterling players and can be counted upon to do anything in any kind of a game Most of them didn t get letters however probably because the coaches figured they had enough letters in their names as it is Whenever any of them did get in a game the radio announcers suddenly left their posts and two telegraph operators were reported to have collapsed This eleven probably solves the question of why all players have numbers

RICKARD TO TRY SOUTH IN MARCH

Plans To Match Young Stribling with Jack Sharkey in Heavyweight Tilt at Miami Beach Fla ; Expect To Pull Down Half Million Gate

BY DAVIS J WALSH

NEW YORK Dec 14—Boxing s busy barometer was on the move again today, headed due south into the land where the moon is full and romance never dies headed south for the first time since Sullivan and Kilrain were smuggled into Mississippi on flat cars and Corbett and Mitchell had at it under the fronded palms of a Florida landscape

The highly commercial Mr Rickard, romantic like a cash register has made this possible He announced last night that Jack Sharkey and Young Stribling two of the leading heavyweights now surviving the prevalent urge toward retirement and the higher and better things of life to fight in Miami, Beach Fla on March 1 Thus, a most glittering and important heavyweight match goes away from New York and the big towns of the north at a time when the north is supposed to be clamoring for the thrill that only a big fight can summon

It isn t usual for the boys to hasten away from what are called the great centers of population with their heavyweight fights Rickard was in Jersey City with his bonanza in 1921 he had it in New York in 1923 in Philadelphia in 1926 in Chicago last year and in New York again in 1928 For the gentleman knows what he is about

He is going south with this fight because he believes the only thing in life more romantic than a dollar is two of them He is coming to Miami Beach with this fight because he believes the southern resort will out gross New York on the same attraction by more than three to one He estimated today that Sharkey and Stribling will play to a half million dollar house in Miami They couldn t hope to do better than $150 000 at the garden here in March he declared

He then went on to point out Miami Beach s natural advantages as a site for the bout enumerating among other things the fact that Florida has a winter visiting list of 200 000 that Miami has a population of 100 000 and the Stribling s appearance as one of the principals will act as a magnet to his native state of Georgia and the south in general

Stribling are close to the promoter is ready to sign for the match and Sharkey has accepted terms The latter to qualify for the slot, must dispose of K O Christner the surprise package the first night in Knute Hansen s entrance The Sharkey Christner business is down on the books for 4 January

Other item of general interest vouchsafed by the promoter included the statement that Sharkey and Stribling will meet under the auspices of the Miami Post of the American Legion and that business men on the Chamber of Commerce have offered to underwrite the fight for any amount necessary

So much or financial potentialities Competitively the proposition is a certified thriller The heavyweight title will not ride with the result since neither of the principals is a champion in his own right But it might very well be that the winner of such a fight will go right on to ultimate recognition as the successor of Gene Tunney

Somehow too the meeting holds a promise of more glamour than anything Tex Rickard was able to develop in his heavyweight eliminations last year It is in fact the most interesting heavyweight match that has been made since the Tunney Dempsey Sharkey series of 1927 the Tunney Heeney title fight of last summer having been about as interesting as the average bill of lading

Waiting in the background for the winner will be Tommy Loughran the light heavyweight champion Paulino and perhaps Dempsey himself

DR. WILCE TO ENTER GENERAL PRACTICE, HE TELLS FRIENDS

Presented with Packard Sedan at Banquet in Columbus

COLUMBUS, Dec 14—Doubt and conjecture concerning the future of Dr J W Wilce football mentor at Ohio State university went by the boards today with the announcement by the usually reticent doctor that "It is my present plan to enter the practice of general medicine and medical physical education in the city of Columbus "

Wilce s outlining of his plans confounding many who had confidently predicted his acceptance of coaching offers from this or that university came at a testimonial dinner tendered him here last night when swept by praise and laudation of assembled friends he tossed away a prepared speech as 'too formal and stilted and declared that he left the football situation at Ohio State "more firmly convinced than ever before of the soundness of the system that has obtained there for the last 16 years "

Dr Wilce was presented with a traveling bag on behalf of the 1928 gridiron squad and a Packard sedan by admiring friends

It was revealed that the coach had chosen Dec 13 as the date for the dinner because the numerals 1 3 played a lucky role in his career and for this reason those presenting him with the car have arranged to have the license number 131313 issued to him every year

The tentative schedule as outlined by Rockne, follows:

Indiana, Northwestern, Georgia Tech, Wisconsin, Drake, Carnegie Tech, Army, Navy, Pittsburgh, Southern California.

In addition to these ten games tentatively lined up Coach Rockne said that one or two others will be added if the necessary arrangements are made. One of the crack southern teams, such as Southern Methodist University, or Vanderbilt, or Tennessee, or a team from the Little 19 Conference of Illinois and Wisconsin teams or even a Buckeye Conference team such as Ohio Wesleyan may possibly be brought on the schedule.

If the Irish go through with a schedule so pretentious as this they will draw a "gate" which will cause all existing records for college teams to be cast aside. Notre Dame played before at least 440,000 fans in the 1928 season and the 1929 card should draw a total well around the half million mark.

Rockne emphasize the importance of a stadium for Notre Dame and pointed out that South Bend as well as Notre Dame would profit by the addition of a stadium seating 60,000 or more.

Wesleyan Quintet Is Given Rest After State Victory

DELAWARE, Dec. 14—Although his Ohio Wesleyan basketball team has just put in the bag its opening game with Ohio State, Coach Ray Detrick is giving his men a complete layoff this week so that they may put full time on their studies.

"Put in lots of over-time on your books this week and then report for practice next Monday," the Bishop court mentor has told the players.

The holiday was declared by Detrick for three reasons. He wants every man to be up in his class work and eligible for second semester competition. Three members of his first team were on the football team and have had little rest since the grid season began. The third reason for the vacation this week is that Detrick was well pleased with his team in its 36 to 20 victory over Ohio State. It was the Bishops' first cage win over State since 1921.

Floyd Siegenthaler, centre on the team, and John "Red" Halliday and Francis Thomas, guards, are the three who no sooner turned in their football togs than they were handed basketball uniforms. Siegenthaler entered the State game with a bad ankle sustained in the final football game with Wittenberg but nevertheless he was an important factor in the State victory. None of the three had a chance to practice basketball until a week before the State game but each played in mid-season form.

The Wesleyan quintet will not see action again until it plays Cedarville college at Cedarville Dec. 21, and St. Xavier at Cincinnati, Dec. 22.

LOCALS UNABLE TO OVERCOME BIG LEAD IN CLOSING PERIOD

Lose Second Game to Allen County "Y" Quintet, 32-26

FLASHING sustained offensive in only one period, the second, the Marion Y-Indus cagers provided nothing but an exciting evening from the Lima "Y" team in their tussle at the local Y. M. C. A. last night. The final score was 32-26.

The local outfit badly crippled by the loss of Fetter, who was injured in this week's industrial games, got away to a poor start in the initial period. The Lima basketeers repeatedly broke through the local defense for easy shots under the basket in the first few minutes of play. Short snappy passes around the foul circle gave the visitors their first few points when Crites and Quirry, Lima's flashy forwards, registered buckets on breaks around the side.

The Marion team was easily at its best in the second quarter, passing and breaking for easy shots at the Lima basket. Osterholt registered three times in this period on short shots while Lowe sank two beauties from past mid-floor to raise the locals to within one point of the victors.

Four baskets early in the second half spelled the Marion team's doom as the winners jumped to a 27 point total before the Marion offense began to click again. The third period ended with a score of 28-23. The final 10 minutes saw the locals throwing long shots from all over the court in a vain attempt to knot the score.

Osterholt was easily the outstanding offensive star for the locals and the high point scorer of the fray. Bernie Crites lead the winners with five fields for a ten point total. Cram featured the home team's defensive play while Lowe kept the locals in the game several times with his long shots.

The Marion team will journey to Kenton to night in an attempt to subdue the high school reserves in a preliminary to the varsity-Columbus North game.

HANOVER STABLE TO TRAIN AT LONGWOOD

22 Head of Horses Sent to Winter Quarters in Florida

Hanover, Pa., Dec. 14 — Hanover Shoe Farms, home of Peter Manning, 1:56¾, the fastest trotter the turf has seen; Guy McKinney, 1:58¾, holder of the four-year-old trotting record, and Dillon Axworthy, the noted futurity sire, will send 22 head of horses to Longwood, Fla., for winter training.

Thomas S. Berry will tutor the string. Berry is now hobbling about on crutches as the result of the broken ankle he received in the big spill at Cleveland last August when six horses and drivers went down. He, however, is expected to be his old self again when the real training work begins.

The Hanover stable will be made up of the four-year-olds, Mr. Hanna, 2:08, and Micro Dillon, 2:09¼; the two-year-olds, Miss Bertha Hanover, Miss Hanover and Harrison Hanover, and the yearlings, Santa Hanover, Muster Hanover, Nancy Hanover, First Hanover, Rachel Hanover, Czarevna Hanover, Zombro Hanover, Hanover's Bertha, Brother Hanover, Reno Hanover, General Hanover, Helen Hanover, June Hanover, Star Hanover, Nelson Hanover, Hazel Hanover and Justice Hall.

NAMES DRIVER

Tulsa Okla., Dec. 14—J. E. Crosble, prominent light harness horse fancier of this city, has engaged John McQuaig to campaign his stable during the 1929 season. Among others, McQuaig will have a nice group of colts by the former Grand Circuit trotting star, Favenian, 2:01¾, to race.

CLUB MEETS

Galion Social Group Holds Annual Christmas Exchange

Galion, Dec. 14—Mrs. Otto Ricker, Johnson st., Marion, was an out-of-town member present at the meeting of the Golden Arrow club Wednesday night. A dinner at Plank's restaurant proved a delightful affair with holly and Christmas candles as seasonal decorations. Following the dinner which was served to 12 members of the club, the group was entertained at the home of Mrs. S. L. Farrall, South Boston st., where the colorful decorative theme was also appropriately carried out. A large Christmas tree was the central decoration and the annual gift exchange of the club was held, the remainder of the evening being spent in a social way.

yester-afternoon at Camilla ttle cottage at Playa del e house overlooks a vast f Pacific which, because of ies, aped the color to dreary . And Camilla just recov- flu and excited over the icile. She did speak at gth on purchasing pinkish crepe—crepe georgette, she put it—for curtains. Having completed "King of the Mountain," with John Barrymore, she is at liberty to housefrau to her heart's delight, and how this German mädchen does revel in personalizing a house.

Much elated, too, over her husband coming from Germany to spend Christmas with her. Elated, too, over the dim prospect of going to Naples by next spring. Camilla likes Hollywood, but she finds it rather lonely at times. And, indeed, no place can be lonelier than this village when one is accustomed to the gaiety and sometimes charming islation of a cosmopolite existence. Such a one, to be sure, is Camilla Horn.

Another Mayfair dance. At ye Biltmore. With flicker-ites a-glitter and a-dazzle in luscious gowns, and some not so luscious, and winking jewels. And the men hard put in their black tuxedoes to compete with such color, but succeeding because, to be sure, they were men.

There was Paul Bern with Agnes Ayres and Johnny Farrow with Alice White, Evelyn Brent with her husband, Harry D. Edwards, and Lowell Sherman and Betty Francisco, Paul Scofield and Sharon Lynn, Joan Crawford and Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., Norma Shearer and husband, Irving Thalberg; Bebe Daniels and her party. A small Mayfair gathering, as such monthly affairs go, but indeed, all seemed to have a merry time.

The next dance will be held New Year's Eve, or thereabouts, though one suspects it may be postponed until the following week, as half Hollywood plans to traipse to Caliente to greet 1929. The delightful reformers are helpless to perpetrate their ideas on a massed humanity after said humanity once crosses the border. And after all, even the biblical heroes relished a goodly quaff. New Year's is New Year's.

GETS APPLE CELLAR

Ford's Wayside Inn Has New Feature: and Full of Apples

Sudbury, Mass—Henry Ford's Wayside Inn, among its other antiques and relics of old times, is soon to have an "apple cellar," made famous by the New England farmers years ago when they kept apples and other fruits in an atmosphere of proper humidity, according to Manager Earle Boyer, of the Wayside Inn.

Manager Boyer said the new stone and concrete cellar will be ready for the fall crop of apples. It will have a capacity of 40,000 boxes of fruit but it is not expected that the crop from the Ford estate will reach that figure for some time.

The orchards from the Ford estate comprise 14,000 apple trees, mostly Baldwin, Northern Spy and Mackintosh. This is a much more difficult variety to keep than other varieties but Mr. Boyer has high hopes that he will succeed in his endeavor.

The Wayside Inn estate also boasts of 14 quince trees believed to be the largest quince orchard in New England. There are 700 peach trees.

15 SENIORS NAMED FOR HONOR SOCIETY

Selection from Upper Third Class Made at Harding High School

Fifteen students at Harding High school have been elected to the National Honor society, the ambition of every student interested in the school and the highest distinction the school can bestow.

The 15 were chosen from the upper third of the senior class according to scholarship, with the added qualifications of character, service and leadership. The first choosing from the upper third is made by the entire staff of teachers, with a final 15 chosen by a council of 10 teachers.

The percentage of selections is lower than that stipulated in the constitution of the society and permits the school to select 10 more students during the second semester of school work. Induction services will be held Thursday night, Dec. 20 at 8 o'clock in the high school auditorium, with the parents of the candidates as guests.

ROAD MAN DIES

Injuries Suffered from Auto Accident Prove Fatal

Delaware, Dec. 14—Funeral arrangements were being made today for Thomas Moore, 60, of Bellpoint, state highway department foreman, who died here last night of injuries suffered when he was run over by a truck he had just repaired.

Moore and the truck's driver, Joseph Jaycox, had crawled under the stone-loaded truck to make repairs. Jaycox returned to the driver's seat and, believing Moore had crawled from beneath the heavy vehicle, started the truck. Moore's right leg was crushed and he was taken to a hospital here where the leg was am- hospital here where the leg was am- internal injuries but failed to rally and died at the hospital.

DOWNTOWN COACHES RAPPED BY ARTICLE

Attitude Criticized by Ohio State University Monthly

Columbus, Dec. 14—Criticizing the attitude of "downtown coaches" and their alleged interference with university officials in athletic affairs at Ohio Stiao university, an editorial headed "There Are Limits" will appear in Ohio State University Monthly, college publication, it was learned today. Publications of the issue is scheduled for Monday.

"Perhaps other universities have their problem of the 'downtown coach,' the editorial declares, "but nowhere, it seems, is the malady more acute than in Columbus, where over-passioned zealots in the cause of bigger and better football teams go to astounding lengths in expression of their perfervid enthusiasm which may be well intentioned but oft-times serves no good purpose."

Reference is made in the editorial to a straw ballot conducted in one newspaper for the selection of a new coach and to a cartoon "which boldly assumed to dictate the policy by which the successor to the retiring coach should be named."

"The university has never begrudged the public at large its concern in the football fortunes of the school, but destructive and ill mannered criticism which can only serve to embarass the administration is, at best, going a bit too far."

Concluding the editorial states that even the organized alumni has never thought of abusing their relationship to the university by a "policy of dictation or interference," but have limited their rights to offer "constructive and helpful counsel and criticism". They are therefore justified in denying to others an overreach of these limitations." Dr. J. W. Wilce, retiring football mentor at the university, came in for a meed of praise from the editorial.

Prof. Thomas E. French, president of the athletic board at the university, declares in an article in the issue that Dr. Wilce resigned "long before he wanted to."

Wilce's resignation was due, at least in part, to "criticism of 'downtown coaches'" the articles says.

Columbus Chief Sounds Death Knell Against Criminals

Columbus, Dec. 14—Sounding the death knell against criminals, tipsters, vagrants, loiterers and generally undesirable citizens, Police Chief Harry E. French today went grimly ahead with his crusade, inaugurated yesterday, which already has dragged 80 persons into its net.

All are being held for investigation and were to be charged with vagrancy today.

Declaring that he is determined to keep Columbus from becoming a "dumping ground" for criminals, gamblers and other undesirables, Chief French said the police had no intention of molesting bonafide citizens, temporarily unemployed, but that bums, stragglers and others living by their wits, would have to take themselves and their dubious means of livelihood elsewhere.

FIRE VICTIM MAY BE MURDER CASE WITNESS

Cincinnati, Dec. 14—County authorities and police today were of the opinion that the body of a man found burned almost beyond identification Wednesday night in a blazing barbecue stand might be that of Robert Andres, 28. Andres, according to police, was the state's star witness in the murder case against Rodney Ford, alleged to have slain Peter Daniele, marshal of North College Hill, suburb.

It was first thought that the man had met death in a bootleg war and his body thrown into the stand which was then fired in an effort to hide the crime. L. F. Andres, Robert's father, told police last night that his son had been mysteriously missing from home for two days.

FREED FROM THE MEDICINE HABIT

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN brought welcome relief

Sufferers from constipation will be interested in Mrs. Van Horn's letter below. She wrote us, voluntarily, to express her appreciation for the wonderful results ALL-BRAN brought.

June 17, 1927

"I feel as if I must write you a few lines to let you know what a wonder food your ALL-BRAN is and what it has done for me and many others I have told about it. I have been using it for one year and have a movement every morning. Before, I was taking medicine every three or four days. Now, I never take any. Many thanks to ALL-BRAN. I can't praise it too much."

Sincerely:
MRS. G. W. VAN HORN,
2125 S. 57th St., Philadelphia

Don't let constipation sap your health and strength. Headaches, dizziness, blotched complexions are only a few of the evils it causes. It is responsible for more than forty serious diseases.

Guard against it—now. Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is guaranteed to bring relief. Just eat two tablespoonfuls daily—chronic cases, with every meal. ALL-BRAN is a ready-to-eat cereal—100% bran. Delicious and healthful with milk or cream, or with fruit or honey added. Recipes on package. Sold by all grocers. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

BREAD—Some Food!

Any regular boy will tell you that Bread is the food that goes right to the spot. His motto is "When Hungry—Eat Bread."

Remember that the first ten years of life make or mar a child's future. Then you'll make it a point to feed for health.

—That means plain substantial foods with bread heading the list. Bread at every meal and between meals is the right of growing kiddies.

Bread in every form is good food but bread-and-milk is "hunky-dory" food, nature's ideal combination richest in life-giving vitamines. Insist upon

HONEY-KRUST BREAD

TODAY'S REVIEW OF YESTERDAY'S GRAIN

Chicago, Dec. 14—Today the grain trade was to be given the final report on the 1928 crops of all grains. It will be released by the Department of Agriculture at 4 p. m., Washington time, or 3 p. m. Chicago time, after the close of the session.

With foreign markets all strong, there was a friendlier feeling toward wheat in the local trade yesterday and prices worked higher. Rather liberal short covering sent quotations up through the cost of the privileges, but selling by holders of these and by longs, who it was figured had been holding through the recent break, shaded best prices.

Late weakness in corn was a factor in the closing reaction of wheat. The yellow cereal was firm and higher early and shorts grew nervous over the display of strength. Later with the help of heavy deliveries and free offerings of December which weren't wanted, prices receded.

Wheat prices at the close registered net gains of 1-4@1-2c. Corn finished 1-2c lower to 1-8c higher; oats were unchanged to 1-4c higher; rye was 1@1 3-8c up. Winnipeg wheat futures finished 1-4@5-8c higher.

One of the most striking features of the day was the utter lack of any pronounced views concerning the forthcoming government report. Usually there are plenty of opinions on the subject, freely bandied about. If there were any definite ones yesterday, the owners kept them to themselves.

There is one prevalent sentiment: Should the report, by some unexpected chance, prove very bullish, there would be a tendency to discount it, much as was done following the final Canadian estimate.

Based on the usual activity of the market preceding a report, yesterday's trade might be construed as mildly bullish. Evening up transactions ordinarily account for the bulk of the business before an official estimate is given out, and the rather active short covering in evidence at times suggested that the outstanding short interest is very large.

Export demand was characterized as still dull, although sales of 500,000 to 600,000 bu. were reported. Rains in the north of Argentina, which may slow up the movement there, were responsible for an upturn at Buenos Aires, and were probably the factor behind lighter offerings at Liverpool, which closed unchanged to ⅝c higher. Reports from England said Italy is buying Australian wheat.

CROSSING IS INSTALLED BY PENNSY SUPERVISOR

Today in Marion Markets

Groceries, Produce, Meats, Grain, Livestock

Business showed a slight tendency to improve during the last two days according to the reports received from local retail dealers in fruits, vegetables and meats this morning.

Sales have been small here for some time, and the explanations usually offered by retailers to explain such a condition have been unsatisfactory.

Retailers believed that a cold snap would stimulate business, but the cold weather during the early part of this week had no effect on sales.

As a result of the slight increase in business during the last two days which seems to be quite general local dealers are more optimistic. They tend to believe that business will continue to improve so that the pre-Christmas sales may possibly rival the unusually large pre-Thanksgiving business.

No price changes either on fruits, vegetables or meats were reported here by retailers this morning.

Now Grateful and Happy For Amazing Benefits Gained Through Use of New Konjola

MR. JAMES CREAMER

"Rheumatism and other ailments tortured me for several years and defied all medicines and treatments until I took Konjola and this medicine restored my health in every way," said Mr. James Creamer, Fernwood Road, Steubenville, Ohio.

"The pains of rheumatism came over me when I least expected them. My limbs, joints and muscles of my body became sore and stiff, work was agony and walking indescribable misery. Then my liver and kidneys became affected and added their symptoms to my other troubles. Life was not worth living. I would have given anything for a day's relief. Was there nothing in this world to reach my case?

"My question was answered in the affirmative. Konjola came into my life and proved the medicine I always needed. Right from the start I noticed an improvement. The rheumatic pains eased up and then disappeared. My liver and kidneys were regulated and are now functioning perfectly. In every way I have been benefited. New feelings of strength and energy are mine. I owe it all to Konjola and will recommend it at every chance."

MARION WOMAN LOSES PURSE, MONEY SHOPPING

Mrs. Ella Uouart, Canby ct., lost a purse containing $23 while shopping in the downtown district yesterday, according to her report to a city patrolman shortly after she discovered her loss. She laid the purse down while she examined an article in a five and ten cent store, she told the officer. When she reached for the purse it was gone, she said.

Fundamentalists believe that there can be evolution in a man's nature, but not in his anatomy.
